

Picking Up The Pieces

Discussion and Support Group For Those Raising Children With Difficult Beginnings

Are you interested in learning more about how to deal with your children's difficult behaviors? Would you like a chance to connect with other caregivers of children who have had difficult beginnings, including trauma and/or loss? This 6-week group is for caregivers to share their own experiences, learn from others, and develop a trauma-informed parenting toolkit.

Each week, we will discuss specific topics regarding trauma, loss, attachment, parenting, and child development. There will also be plenty of time for informal discussion, support, and sharing. Group leaders will also share resources including books, films, articles, and helpful organizations.
